Comments:
The veterinary medical technology department program, accredited by the AVMA (American Veterinary Medical Association) and CVTA (Committee on Veterinary Technician Education and Activities), meets the educational requirements for all states shown and provides graduates the ability to sit for national board exams (VTNE).

After passing national boards, they are eligible to sit for state exams in individual states in which they wish to obtain licensure. The AAVSB (American Association of Veterinary State Boards) provides information on rules and regulations for individual state licensure.
